Recovered Memorial Investigation Report — Operation SUNDIAL

CLASSIFIED — INTERNAL SIGINT ANALYSIS

Subject: Dwight D. Eisenhower Memorial
Location: Washington D.C.
Reference Protocol: SUNDIAL

Following the recovery of several intercepted broadcasts linked to Operation SUNDIAL, analysts identified a recurring set of GPS coordinates embedded within archived surveillance material. The coordinates correspond to the Dwight D. Eisenhower Memorial located in Washington D.C.

Historical references recovered from the transmissions repeatedly mention the initials 'D.D.E.' together with terminology associated with psychological conditioning, cognitive destabilization, and prolonged low-frequency exposure.

Although no official documentation confirms the existence of Operation SUNDIAL, multiple declassified fragments suggest that experimental influence techniques may have been directed toward strategic political figures during the Cold War.

Recovered field notes indicate that subjects exposed to the transmissions reported insomnia, paranoia, auditory fixation, and recurring linguistic loops.

The following image was recovered from the final archived package.

Recovered memorial photograph — hidden signal marker detected.

NOTE:

Investigators are advised to inspect the image carefully for embedded artifacts or machine-readable markers possibly associated with secondary transmissions.

“The subjects begin hearing the broadcast even in silence.”